

OBJECT RUNWAY

Flowers? Check. Centerpieces? Check. Aisle runner? Now you can cross that off your list too. After designing a runner with a Tiffany-blue-inspired damask pattern for her own wedding, Stephanie Herzog launched WEDDING RUNWAYS with her mother, Lisa Cappetta. The company now makes customized runners for wedding ceremonies; with just a few clicks on its Web site, you can choose the size, color and pattern of your path to the altar, or call Herzog directly and she'll incorporate handstitched lace borders, your initials or images from your invitations. And don't worry about tripping on this matrimonial version of the red carpet; the material that Herzog uses is tear-proof and nonsliding—essential for those four-inch Jimmy Choos. From $145 to $2,900; 203-481-8408; weddingrunways.com.

JENNY WELBEL

Trend Spotting: Mobile Dining

The latest must-do for receptions? Hiring old-fashioned food

F
Win
eve
ado
coll
in s prin
Ma de l
coll
pre
and of e
Def
to i
you
dela